IP COMPLETE CASE STUDY

A regional newspaper with a customer service and call center had outgrown its communication services. With the proliferation of electronic advertising and subscribers, the staff handled a stream of heavy file downloads and uploads, frustrating increased productivity. But fairly predictable spikes in traffic tied to their billing and editorial deadline cycles provided a clue to their enterprising Deltacom account executive.

When their management met with Deltacom, they reviewed a collaborative IP Complete plan with a knowledgeable salesperson. They uncovered issues the newspaper had not even considered, solved problems, and built value for the future.

IP Complete delivers the dynamic allocation of voice and data traffic they need. Now, reporters and administrators can deliver the news and take speedy communication for granted!
